New Demand Is Made For State Grand Jury Probe

Governor Earle And Eight Members Of Administration Facing Charges

CORRUPTION IS ALLEGED IN STATE

Supreme Court To Hear Arguments Monday On Allowing Probe As Asked

By WILLIAM THEIS
International News Service Staff Correspondent

HARRISBURG, June 11.—Pennsylvania's troubled Democratic administration, weakened by internal political strife, prepared its answer today to a new bid for a sweeping grand jury investigation of alleged corruption among its leaders.

The crucial test of three and a half years' political power comes on Monday for the administration and the party.

Arguments Monday. Then the state supreme court in Philadelphia will hear arguments on whether to allow a sweeping Dauphin county grand jury investigation of charges that Gov. George H. Earle and eight members of his administration conspired in a "system of crime" to defraud the commonwealth.

On the same day, the eve of the Democratic state committee meeting, party leaders expect to seal their factional reunion after months of open party warfare.

Should the high court reverse its previous ban on a grand jury probe because of new evidence presented yesterday by Dist. Attorney Carl B. Shetler, indications were strong here that Attorney General Guy K. Bard might exercise his authority to supersede the local prosecutor.

Governor Assails Charges. Governor Earle termed the accusations contained in Shetler's amended petition a "repetition of the primary lies." He said he would make no further comment until the supreme court had disposed of the matter.

Secretary of Property and Supplies Arthur Chiorico, accused in the petition of participating in a "kick-back" conspiracy, issued a denial explaining that he acted on Oiling operations are being started next week by the Pennsylvania Highway Department in various sections of the state, according to the Detroit Bulletin. The nearest to New Castle where these operations are being conducted is in Butler county, near West Sunbury, Kaylor, and Millerstown. There are no new detectors in the local district.

Folks wishing to go to Conneaut Lake are advised to take Route 19, unless they are out for a drive. Recently one of Pa. N.W.'s boys took Route 18 through Greenville and Hartstown. When he finally got to the lake he had run up 80 miles on his speedometer. Coming back, the distance was just 100 about that much. The detour takes you across the right arm of Pymatung Dam into Lakesville.

Only two bridges remain to be replaced now in Pennsylvania out of the thirty some odd structures washed out by the floods of 1936 and 1937. These are both between Westmoreland and Indiana counties at Apollo and Livermore.

Folks in the neighborhood of South Walnut street, are pleased with the good work that the city employees accomplished on their street, on Friday.

Republicans Are Jubilant

State Committee In Session At Philadelphia Sees Victory In Fall

TORRANCE NAMED STATE CHAIRMAN

(International News Service) PHILADELPHIA, June 11.—Jubilant over their chances of success in the November elections, members of the Republican state committee today opened their biennial reorganization meeting here on a platform of party harmony.

Candidates and party leaders from Judge Arthur H. James, gubernatorial standard bearer, and James J. Davis, seeking re-election as U. S. senator, down were on hand as the session began with an address of welcome by Jay Cooke, chairman of Philadelphia's Republican city committee.

See United Party. Conspicuous among the delegates were supporters of former Governor Gifford Pinchot, defeated candidate for governor in the Republican primaries, whose presence bolstered G. O. P. claims that today's reorganization assembly would be one of the strongest moves for party peace among Republicans in years.

Pinchot supporters present, in addition to C. Edward Green, retiring state chairman, included P. Stephen Stahlacker, campaign manager for the former governor. Significantly, it was pointed out, state leaders were seeking a spot for Stahlacker in the coming campaign in determination to wrest control of the commonwealth from the Democratic party next fall.

James F. Torrance, primary campaign manager for James, was elected as state chairman to succeed Green at the session.

German Press Turns Angriely Upon Czechs

(International News Service) BERLIN, June 11.—With screaming red-link headlines, their tone dictated by propaganda minister Paul Joseph Goebbels, the German press today turned angrily on Czechoslovakia.

Czech soldiers were termed "mad man-hunters" on the eve of the last of three municipal elections in Czechoslovakia in which 3,500,000 Sudeten Germans are fighting for self-rule.

This time the unanimous, government-directed press campaign added the chimera of Czechoslovakia as a menace to the customary attacks on alleged Czech ill-treatment of the Sudetens.

Urges Church People To Investigate Night Clubs And Saloons In County

Church people of Lawrence county are urged by Dr. R. H. Martin, president of the National Reform Association, to go on stumping parties to the saloons and night clubs in order to see for themselves the conditions prevailing in these days of Repeal.

Addressing the County Sabbath School Association Friday night at the closing session of the 100th convention at the Highland church, the Pittsburgh crusader, former Geneva College president, denounced the lechery which has existed among the people of the churches and Sunday schools, and implored them to "wake up."

"I know the things that are actually going on in this county," he said, "you would wake up. And you and I as Christians have a right to know. Organize in groups. Go to see these places."

Dr. Martin pointed out that there are six state liquor stores here, 96 retail license places, 14 distributors, and one brewery. He said the people of the county are spending approximately $2,000,000 for intoxicating beverages. He urged the Sabbath school leaders to work for the abolishment of this evil and told them how they may do so.

Rev. Driggers Speaks. Rev. A. E. Driggers, pastor of the Rochester Presbyterian church, gave the other address of the evening. He told of interesting experiences on a visit to Edinburgh, Scotland.

President Robert Strickler introduced Dr. Martin.

London Feels Quake Shock

Severe Tremor Shakes Wide Area Of England During Day

BELGIUM ALSO IN QUAKE AREA

By KINGSBURY SMITH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, June 11.—Case-hardened to excitement by never-ending political crises and periodic war scares, London thrilled to a new experience today when a sharp earthquake, felt over a wide area of England and on the continent, rocked the capital.

For five minutes the city shuddered and trembled, and for 60 seconds of this time the disturbance was officially described as "intense." The quake struck at one minute before noon when the streets were jammed with pedestrians and hotels, restaurants and shops filled to capacity.

In Other Localities. In Brussels and other cities of Belgium the quakes lasted for twenty minutes, causing minor damage such as broken windows and dismantled chimneys. They were felt also in Paris, and dispatches from the French capital said the effect there was to render the inhabitants "dizzy." London lost its customary poise and aplomb and even Paul Mall witnessed the strange spectacle of gray-moustached clubmen in striped trousers and morning coats rushing out into the street to see what had happened.

So far as England was concerned, it was the strongest tremor felt in many years. The New observatory recorder the epicenter as somewhere in the English Channel, with some mysterious submarine disturbance responsible.

Asks U. S. Makers Not To Sell Bombers To Warring Nations

(International News Service) WASHINGTON, June 11.—The American government today, in an unusual move, sought to throw a stumbling block in the path of aggressors using bombing planes for attacks on non-combatant civilian populations.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull appealed to American manufacturers of warplanes not to sell any bombers, or any type of aircraft which could be used for bombing, to nations making aerial raids on civilian centers.

Under orders from Daladier, police ejected 500 strikers from the national mint. The workers had attempted to occupy the plant in protest against a government decree withdrawing the 40-hour work week and ordering pensioned former employees rehired.

Daladier warned that all employees who fail to return to work at the mint Monday will be considered to have resigned and will not be rehired.

Believe Lightning Struck Plane

Blame Weather For Fatal Crash

Illinois Disaster Is Believed Due To Lightning Wrecking Ship

EIGHT VICTIMS
UNABLE TO JUMP

DELAVAN, Ill., June 11.—The weather and not any mechanical or human failure probably was sole cause of the crash here yesterday of a huge United States army bombing plane in which three officers and five enlisted men were killed, a military board of inquiry indicated today after preliminary investigation.

Witnesses to the disaster said the bomber plummeted to earth in a sheet of flame after it apparently had been struck by lightning and shortly after the army board arrived here, Major Roy W. Campbell, heading the probe, stated:

Believe Weather Cause

"I'm quite sure the weather caused the crash."

Major Campbell, Lieut. Samuel Stephenson and Capt. Hideo Rush were sent here from Camp Field at Rantoul, Ill., from where the ill-fated ship took off yesterday en route back to its base at Lowry Field, Denver, Colo.

According to stories of witnesses, it seemed certain the victims did not have a chance to save themselves. All the bodies had parachutes attached to their backs, some open. All evidence pointed to a lightning strike of the belief the ship was struck by lightning as the unused chutes came mute testimony to the fact the plane was wrecked so suddenly its crew didn't have a chance to jump free.

List Of Victims

The bomber dove to destruction on the farm of Miss Ella Yonke, who was one of the first to reach the scene. She found the nose of the ship, a Martin bomber of the B-10 type, buried in a hole as large as an automobile. Fragments of the plane were scattered over a half-mile area, but the bodies lay in or near the wreckage.

Killed were: Capt. Richard B. Reeve, 36, Waukegan, Wis.; First Lieut. Norman Ives, 31, Golden, Colo.; Second Lieut. Thomas Langston, 27, Galveston, Texas; Staff Sergeant Edward Murrain, Denver; Corporal William E. Housley, St. Louis; Private Philip Trout, Galax, Va.; Private George A. Hunstman, Kankakee, Ill.; and Private Max W. Myser, Villa Grove, Ill.

Hoarded Money Found In Home

Find Several Thousand Dollars In Home Of Late Recluse Near Masontown

(International News Service)

MASONTOWN, Pa., June 11.—Thousands of dollars in cash and negotiable securities were reported found today in the old safe of Fred Shroyer, 72, a recluse who died here last May 31.

State police at Uniontown verified the reports, but stated that they did not know how much money was in the safe they were asked to guard until the banks opened.

"I don't know whether anybody knows for sure," one trooper remarked. "There was so much money in the safe that it took a long time to count it, and I know our officers didn't spend the night doing that."

Shroyer, unmarried, lived alone except for his housekeeper, Annie M. Yager, in a modern house on a cut stone foundation.

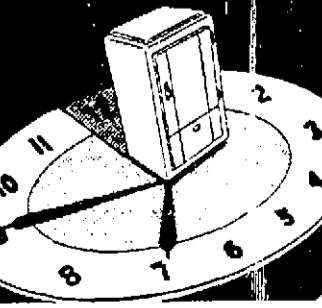

Friends said that although he probably never won a good suit until he died he frequently boasted to them that he could lay his hands on a "third of a million" in cash whenever he chose.

Nevertheless he did without electric lights, running water and other conveniences. Often he paid for his purchases in pennies.

Mrs. David Gans, of Philadelphia, and her three daughters, one of whom, Harriet, a lawyer, came here to settle the estate, were reported to be his only heirs.

Although every state in the United States has suffered a tornado of some type, the Mississippi valley has been particularly susceptible.

dowed the speakers, and during the course of the evening presented two awards to Men's Bible classes having the best attendance at the convention. One award went to the Highland U. P. Men's Federation and the other to the men from the New Wilmington M. E. church. In presenting the latter award to the teacher of the class, Benjamin F. Kaufmann, Mr. Strickler said it was the third year the New Wilmington men had captured the county honors.

Guests of honor last night were members of the Men's Federated Bible classes of New Castle. The president of the organization, Harvey E. Martin, was seated on the platform and was called upon for remarks.

Several beautiful vocal numbers were sung by the Highlanders quartet, composed of Dr. D. L. Ferguson, Arthur Thomas, Richard E. Johns and Leonard Kishart, with Judy Copley at the piano. This is an unusually fine quartet and the part it played on the program last night added greatly to the enjoyment of the convention's closing session.

Earlier in the evening at the banquet hour, the delegates were pleased by another musical program in which Miss Margaret Byrd Shaw of the Neshannock U. P. church gave a vocal solo. Mrs. A. W. Smith of the Rose Point Reformed Presbyterian church played the piano, and trumpet solos were given by Rev. A. W. Smith of Rose Point and Robert Miller of Ellwood City. The latter accompanied by Ed. Gimbler.

Tribute was paid to the memory of the late Percy L. Craig, former state president, and Mr. Strickler introduced Mrs. Craig, who was in the audience.

State Secretary Walter E. Myers made a few farewell remarks to the association.

The two-day convention ended with benediction by Rev. A. E. Driggers.

Legal advice from Shelley's present unofficial adviser, former Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti. It was Margiotti, as attorney general and a Democratic gubernatorial candidate, who brought several of the strongest charges used by Shelley.

Baird, in turn, accused Margiotti of failing to return certain state records he obtained while a cabinet officer. At the same time he implied Shelley had failed to cooperate with him in his own investigation of the prosecutor's original charges, termed "vague and indefinite" by the supreme court on May 25.

Fourteen state officials or party associates were named in the 17-point list of Shelley's charges.

Fourteen Named

They were: Governor Earle; Democratic State Chairman David L. Lawrence, secretary of the commonwealth; Secretary of Labor and Industry Ralph M. Bashore, also state committee secretary; Edward W. Prendergast, secretary to the governor; Colegrove, also Erie county Democratic chairman; Secretary of Highways Roy E. Brownmiller; Chairman Leo Crossen of the liquor control board; J. Twing Brooks, liquor board member; Carroll McShane, chief of the inspection bureau, revenue department; Harry E. Kalodner, former secretary to the governor; former Philadelphia judge, Matthew H. McCloskey, Jr., Philadelphia Democratic co-leader and state Democratic finance chairman; Carl K. Dean, Democratic state committee secretary; Thomas Reilly, an alleged agent, and Robert M. Payer, Dauphin county Democratic chairman.

Charges In Brief

Shelley charged, briefly that the alleged conspirators—starting back as far as 1935—conspired to defraud the state by obtaining one-third of their commissions on general state authority projects for an estimated $1,300,000.

Illegally obtain $50,000 in "kick-back" money from agents of truck manufacturers who won state business.

Force payment of $40,000 in bribes from liquor and wine vendors in return for liquor board business.

Receive $100,000 for passage of the 1935 Sunday movie bill; $50,000 in 1935 and $100,000 in 1937 from brewers for favorable legislation.

Extort $200,000 annually from state employees in payroll contributions under threat of dismissal.

"The evidence on hand is of such a nature that in your petitioner's opinion it is sufficient to promise the assurance of at least one conviction for each of the particular offenses charged therein," Shelley's petition to the supreme court stated.

He said a grand jury investigation was imperative to permit a "full and complete" investigation.

Except for Kalodner, who termed the petition's charges "entirely false—made behind the cloak of immunity of a legal pleading," and Lawrence's generosity that "it's a local matter for Mr. Baird," the other principals declined to comment.

Colegrove alone struck back with a specific denial and counter-charges.

His reply was directed at Shelley's charge that he participated in the alleged kick-backs on metal office furniture, trucks, syrup and road-building materials involved in the sensational Erie "gravel scandal" of last year.

The New Castle banks will be closed on Tuesday, June 14, to observe Flag Day, which was recently declared a legal holiday in Pennsylvania by the State legislature.

Traffic Commissioner Thomas Jones stated today that the re-wiring of all the East Washington street traffic signals has not yet been completed but he anticipates that the progressive control system will be placed in operation some time late next week. When it starts automobiles may be able to flow east and west between Croton avenue and the Public Square without a stop signal showing.

Frequent visitors at the home of the Robinson family on the New Castle-Edenburg road are three wild canaries, which they have seen in their driveway. They report that the birds are unusually beautiful, having bright yellow feathers and dark wing feathers. One is of a lighter hue, however, than the others.

THE LAST DIRIGIBLE

ONLY the little group of dirigible enthusiasts, whose ardor is not dampened through tragedy is piled high upon tragedy, will fail in approval of the decision of a sub-committee of the House Appropriations Committee to eliminate a $3,000,000 item for construction of a new lighter-than-air vessel.

There is a long record of disasters in the United States, Italy, France, England and Germany to prove that the dirigible is unsafe and impractical even for service in time of peace. Under the circumstances, it is easy to accept the conclusion of both Army and Navy experts that the dirigible is worse than useless under war conditions.

The United States has already lost many lives and $10,000,000 in the wrecks of three earlier lighter-than-air vessels. It has seen the last word in this type of construction, the Hindenburg, consumed by flames on its own soil, and is quite familiar with the tragic history of the past.

Under the circumstances, another appropriation for this purpose could be viewed in the public mind only as an investment in human destruction and material loss.

CHECK ON FOREIGN PROPAGANDISTS

The new act of congress, requiring foreign government propagandists to register with the secretary of state and make semi-annual reports of their activities and compensation received, is a proper measure of self-protection for this country, although necessity of limited scope.

Under our laws foreign propagandists have full liberty to urge the alleged advantages of alien systems of government and even to advocate their adoption here, provided they do not counsel the overthrow of our government by force. This is in accord with American principles of individual freedom.

However, it is needless to ask how long an American propagandist, following precisely the same policy, would be permitted to operate in Moscow or Berlin. He would speedily find himself in concentration camp or prison.

America's hospitality has been sadly abused by guests within the gates. The new law will impose some check on their activities. It is a step that should have been taken long ago.

TAKING TIME TO LIVE

A high school senior from Whitewater, Kansas, who came East with his class to visit New York, seems to have been an observant youngster and to have carried home with him an enlightening reflection. He observes that whereas New Yorkers "eat with their faces down, looking into their plates," in his part of the country "folks eat with their faces up and can look around and be neighborly."

It is not the mere fact that New Yorkers and Easterners generally attack their meals in a grim, determined fashion, instead of approaching them as a pleasant ceremonial rite, that is disturbing. It is the implication the discerning observation of the Whitewater schoolboy holds that should give us pause.

It follows as more or less a matter of course that if we eat under high tension we live at high gear. We do not take time to relax, to look about us, enjoy the beauty that surrounds us on every side, breathe the air of summer, to be friendly and sociable.

In this respect, and perhaps in many others, we have a great deal to learn from the Latin races, for whom life is a leisurely business, also from the English, who are unburied, and many others who move at a slow tempo through the valley of the years, who live longer in a corresponding period of time and seem to travel twice as far without a great deal of moving around.

A POOR COMPARISON

We fail to find any similarity between barbaric warfare, which claims thousands of innocent women and children as its victims in a few days, and seven kidnapings in a period of six years. Yet Premier Benito Mussolini, through his newspaper, "Il Popolo d'Italia," has tried to establish this connection in an editorial admonishing the United States to learn to protect its own children before trying to humanize warfare.

Kidnaping, it is true, is one of the most dastardly crimes ever perpetrated. The Underbergs, the Matsons, the Levines, the Cashes and other families into whose homes such tragedy has come have the heartfelt sympathy of the world. Perhaps the United States deserves the charge that it is coming in failing to check this epidemic. But—

Picture a beautiful city, its residents living together peacefully and far from what should be the scene of war which has gripped their country. Over this peaceful city huge bombing planes appear without warning and begin to rain horrible destruction. In a few minutes homes and other buildings are reduced to shambles, men, women and children are dead or dying in the streets, others search frantically among the ruins for bodies of their loved ones. Great fires break out, and those who have survived the air raid face additional peril. Their possessions, their survivors despoilingly attempt to resume a life which from them on must be fraught with sorrow.

In the United States, seven families in six years have experienced the sorrow that comes from long days and nights of waiting for the return of a kidnapped child only, in most cases, to learn that their hopes had vanished. In Spain and China, seven tragedies of war bringing sorrow comparable to that caused by kidnaping, even in one day, would pass unnoticed.

All the Diones are to live peacefully in one house. At least, the plan is to have them live in one house.

The Parent Problem

By Garry C. Myers, Ph. D.

RESPONSIBILITY FOR CRIME

It seems to me that the most influential parents are the citizens most responsible for the appalling prevalence of crime. The more cultural educational opportunities and influence we parents have and the more we are looked up to as civic and moral leaders in our respective communities, the more should be expected of us to cultivate the highest sort of citizenship in our own children; and the more the behavior—and its worst—in our children will be imitated by these children whose parents lack our opportunities.

For cultivating good citizenship in our own children with respect for the rights of others, no added taxes are necessary. Indeed, we might reduce our taxes, so much of which is now spent on crime, if through the good citizenship of our own children, those children who for less opportunity were afforded good models of citizenship in our children for them to emulate.

But, alas, it is quite apparent that by and large, many children in the homes of the upper 20 per cent, say, of our socio-economic-educational level, are not learning at home the alphabet of citizenship—respect for the rights of others—in their early years when such can best be learned. While some of these ill-trained children do turn out well by and by, thanks to subtle home influence, good neighbors whose children are well disciplined and guided, not all turn out well. And it appears that the percentage of crime from children of the so-called better homes is rapidly increasing.

Records Don't Tell Story
Of course, the juvenile court records do not tell the true story, since there are so many ways by which the delinquent youth from the "better" home can keep out of the court—fewer ways, however, for them to avoid sentence in the penitentiary eventually. Almost any day we can read in the newspaper of a boy scarcely in his teens murdering his mother or father—and how very frequently from a comfortable home!

Yet there are many wonderful homes with culture, education, wealth and family traditions whose children from infancy have been model citizens. What assets they are to their respective communities! The heaven—the remnant-city on a hill!

If nearly all these parents who are looked up to as good citizens, especially if those who can provide fair physical home environment, were to set about to find and pursue ways to train their children from babyhood in the A. B. C's of restraint, the unambiguous meaning of NO rarely heard, regard for the rights of others—the alphabet of citizenship—in an atmosphere of love, sympathy and companionship, we might expect a check, even a marked decrease, in crime, within a few years and within a decade, so our reformatories, jails and penitentiaries would have many empty rooms.

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

THEY ARE PASSING

The Star of Finland—last of a mighty fleet of square-rigged ships which in earlier days sailed the seven seas to find haven at last as they tacked through California's Golden Gate—will not fare forth to the Alaska coast this summer. The gallant little schooner may never again run before the wind with a bone in her teeth and every shred of canvas set.

The long-heralded passing of the sailing ship is imminent. Labor troubles make it unlikely that the Star of Finland will go north this season. The arrival and departure of the port of San Francisco, for 1938, probably will show no sailing ship arriving or clearing. One senses tragedy sometimes even in progress.

It was inevitable that steam would spell the end of sailing vessels, but somehow, we hate to think of the gallant and adventurous craft being towed out through the Golden Gate, laden with scrap for Osaka.

Yet all is not lost. There are yet the hardy fishermen who sail from Gloucester and New England ports. There are "Disko Troops" left sailing the "Were Heres."

THE MISER

Somebody told him once that Age is a cruel thing on a pittance wage.

Somebody mentioned, when he stood near.

That cold and hunger are things to fear.

Once in the past he heard someone say:

"Spend tomorrow, but save today!"

Somebody told him that Joy's achieved

By chucking to money—and he believed!

Down to the last as a miser grim

The fear of poverty tortured him,

Starved him, thirsted him; broke his pride;

Kept him scheming his gold to hide.

And forced him to suffer, year by year

The very woes he was warned to fear.

Sun sets tonight 7:28, sun rises tomorrow 5:30.

It seems no attempt is being made in this country to reduce the price of anything. The only effects are in making prices higher. It will be interesting to know later what the results will be. In the past prices were regulated by supply and demand but now it's just demand.

SHORTAGE OF SKILLED LABOR
We have frequently stated in this paper that much harm has been done by the idea that six or seven days a week be President of the United States.

The consequence is that nobody wants to learn a trade. Everybody wants a white-collar job. A Cleveland newspaperman found that 80.3 per cent of the city's high school pupils are preparing themselves to enter the white-collar or professional field, while that field enrolls only 9.3 per cent of the city's working population. Only 9.7 per cent of the high school pupils are training themselves to do the type of work which occupies 90.7 per cent of the working population.

Right now we have the situation everywhere in this country of great numbers of unemployed youths and severe shortages of skilled labor.

One of these days we hope the vaudeville of his high school class will startle us by announcing that he intends to become a carpenter. That might make the front page of the newspapers and turn the minds of the boys and girls to realities.

The situation is much the same everywhere. In Europe the dictators win because there is nobody equally smart on the other side.

There are two kinds of "collective security." There is the peace insurance by universal cooperation and the kind we'll have when the Fascists collect everything.

Senate Linesup On Relief
Setup Seems Inconsistent
Two Kinds Of PatronageBy CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Senator Millard E. Tydings of Maryland may have been a bit inconsistent in introducing a senate resolution, shortly before congress adjournment, calling for a three-man senatorial committee to investigate, during the lawmakers' recess, complaints of the use of federal relief money to influence, particularly, the pending congressional nomination and election campaign.

Maybe he was inconsistent considering that he voted against a preceding proposition to penalize, outright, any proved attempt at the exercise of such influence.

Tydings got nine other senators to sign an endorsement of his resolution.

Two of these Senators William G. McAdoo of California and Alva B. Adams of Colorado, like Tydings, opposed penalization of the political use of relief funds. Yet, again like Tydings, they spoke for investigation during the campaign. If Tydings was inconsistent, so were they.

The other seven (Senators Walter F. George of Georgia, Edward R. Burke of Nebraska, William H. King of Utah, Robert J. Bulkley of Ohio, Robert F. Wagner of New York, Carl A. Hatch of New Mexico and Peter G. Gerry of Rhode Island) were not inconsistent at all. They voted for penalization, but were beaten. They saw investigations as the next best thing.

NOT INCONSISTENT
Possibly Senators Tydings, McAdoo and Adams were not inconsistent, after all.

I know what Tydings' reasoning was. He did not favor penalizing offenses which he can only suspect in advance. Adams was senate manager of the relief bill and did not want to tinker with an interpretation of what may come. McAdoo is too staunch a New Dealer to admit that any administrative functionary will do anything he ought to be punished for, but he does not care to admit that he fears investigation.

I should have thought, to be sure, that Tydings would have voted for penalization. And I am surprised that McAdoo and Wagner endorsed his investigation resolution.

The remainder of the lineup was logical enough.
The Republican and miscellaneous senators all were for penalization. Tydings did not bother to seek their endorsements of his investigation resolution. He knew all along which side they were on. Democrats were the only ones he solicited, and he was in a hurry, with the congressional session drawing so fast to a close, or he could have had more.

Nevertheless, if Tydings and one more had switched their votes, penalization would have won. The tally was that close. It is queer that Tydings was with the anti-penalizationists. Inconsistent, I will say.

PATRONAGE—TWO KINDS
But there was nothing inconsistent in the attitude of Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, Democratic leader in the upper congressional chamber.

Barkley opposed penalization, and told clearly why.
The Kentuckian is a candidate for nomination this year. If renominated, he will, it is a foregone conclusion be re-elected. He has, however, a strong primary opponent in Gov. A. B. "Happy" Chandler.

Well, there are two opposing kinds of political "paw" to be dished out in that state.

1. Federal "paw", which, presumably, Barkley controls.

2. State "paw", which, presumably, Chandler controls.

Now, congress, by penalizing federal "paw", could have choked off Barkley's supply of it. But it could not have interfered with Governor Chandler's state supply.

Naturally this would have worked to Barkley's disadvantage.

BARKLEY'S ARGUMENT

The Kentucky senator, in fighting federal penalization, explained how unfair this would be.

"We all know," he said, "that there is not a state in which political organization does not prostitute for its own purposes the employment of men and women."
"Therefore it is most unjust not to permit federal 'prostitution' too."

The Great Game Of Politics

By FRANK R. KENT

(Copyright, 1938)

Post-Primary Comment

Washington, June 11.

BEFORE altogether relegating the Iowa primary results to the rear, there seems justification for dwelling upon those rather unique next-day statements made by some of the more important of the "highly placed" officials, who had so much to do with conducting this first White House-planned effort to "purge" from public life the nine Democratic Senators who last year refused to vote for the court-packing bill.

THE NATURE of their comment is revealing as to the man. It is also a measure of their standards, and deserves more notice than it has had. First, there is Mr. Harry Hopkins, whose endorsement of Mr. Wearin put behind him, so far as it could be done, the full weight of the Federal relief organization. It was an open intrusion by the head of the WPA into partisan politics and as such was denounced on the Senate floor in Iowa and the country generally. The Tuesday statement of Mr. Hopkins was really a gem. "The Iowa vote," he said, "shows that the repeated reminders I gave to WPA workers that they were free to vote as they pleased were not disregarded as some predicted. I am glad to stress this refusal of those who accused us of playing politics."

THIS IS PRETTY NEARLY—though not quite—the high-water mark in official smugness and effrontery. When the known facts concerning Mr. Hopkins' pre-primary participation in the game, that these post-primary statements seem frozen beyond belief. They argue upon the part of this man, upon whom so much responsibility rests and in whose hands so much power is lodged, either an incredible degree of self-deception or a firm conviction of the incurable credulity of the people. In this respect, however, it does not surpass the defense of Mr. Roosevelt of the Hopkins participation in the game, that, though for many years he has not had the remotest personal touch with the State of Iowa, he had been born there and went to college there. For Mr. Roosevelt thus to ignore the vast difference in what a private individual might do in a State in which he once lived and what the head of the WPA, with billions of people dollars to spend for relief, might do, is, to say the least, an extraordinary position for the President of the United States to take.

IF HE CAN condone this, there seems little reason he cannot condone anything. If he defends the unconcealed participation in politics of the WPA head in accord with his promise to keep politics out of relief, then there is no difference between right and wrong and we may as well stop trying to reconcile anything Mr. Roosevelt says with reason. If this is candor, then there should be a new definition of the word. With such an example, it is not worth while to criticize the frankness of Mr. James Roosevelt's telegram to Senator Gillette, nor to comment upon the rush of the other New Dealers to create the impression that in the fight against him there was no venal idea of driving him out of politics because he had been "right" to the Roosevelt policies; no effort to slaughter him as the first of the anti-court packing Democratic Senators to come up for renomination.

IT IS MORE worth while to record the feeling privately expressed by the little group of left-wing intimates who, with full White House knowledge and approval, directed the anti-Gillette attack. These gentlemen make no secret of their chagrin at the outcome; nor are they reticent as to what they think was the reason. It is their belief that they did not go far enough. If you are going to make that kind of a fight, they insist, you ought to put into it everything you have. In this case they did put everything in except—so they say—the biggest thing they had—to wit, the President personally. Because of this, they insist, the result might have been very different. So they say.

IN THE NEXT STATE where this issue can be drawn, these disgruntled strategists declare, the same mistake will not be repeated. The opposition will not be permitted in talk of Mr. Corcoran, Mr. Cohen, Jimmie Roosevelt, Mr. Hopkins and Mr. Keenan as the men who are "interfering in State

Sunday evening talks will be made by Mrs. E. M. Alric, Egypt, and Mrs. A. J. Randles and Mrs. Harriet S. Boobyer, who recently made a survey of the churches in the foreign fields.

The convention closes Tuesday evening with an address by Dr. R. P. Galbreath, president of Westminister college.

'Trinity Sunday' To Be Observed Here

Rev. Pearson Preaching Appropriate Sermon; Special Music

Tomorrow is Trinity Sunday, the climax of the Christian year, when honor and adoration are given to the three persons in the one God. In Trinity church the beautiful, symbolic ceremonial used to mark the great days will be used, with the assistance of the Services Guild.

The music for the occasion includes two special organ numbers played as prelude and postlude by Miss Isabel T. Johnson, "In Summer," Stebbins; "Cantabile Amen," Kunder; the anthem "In Humble Faith and Holy Love," Garrett; and the Communion Service by King Hall in C.

Resulting from detailed studies of the meaning of the Greek word in the New Testament translated here in the English, the pastor will preach a short sermon summarizing its application to the love of God. T. Gwyn Lewis will speak at the meeting of the Young People's Fellowship in the Guild room at 8:30 p. m. This is the final meeting of the season or until fall.

Speaks At First Baptist

John Carrara will speak at the opening program of the First Baptist church Sunday school Sunday morning. Mr. Carrara will speak at 9:45 a. m. The hour toll is announced, with certain about 600 names, and members who have not been absent during May and June will be named on the roll.

A man could be fined for entering a church with spurs on, according to old English law.

Terrace School Closing Program

Pupils Leaving To Enter Junior High School Are Given Tribute

Auditorium of Terrace Avenue school was filled to capacity, when parents and friends came to witness the program presented by the 6A class, who left the school at the end of this term to enter Ben Franklin Junior High.

The room itself was made quite attractive, with its window decorations carried out in ones of pale blue and white, the class colors. The class motto hung above the stage, which was the Latin word "Vive et progredere" and the English translation, "Live and learn." Edith and Ethel Hares, twin sisters, told why the class had chosen this motto.

Miss Anna R. Perry, principal of the school, addressed the group showing how each school subject had played its part in building a strong foundation for future education. She challenged each child to strive to attain a high place in life, and to carry on the principles of honesty, truthfulness, clean speech, and hard work that had been taught to him and her in Terrace school.

Other interesting features of the program were an oral composition on "Our Class Colors" by Irene Damaskos. Sophie Tkachuk then spoke about "The Class Flower." At the end of her speech, she presented a white carnation to Miss Perry. Louis Wrona, 6B, introduced Edward Pann, 6C, the class poet. Edith and Ethel Hares, who then recited an original poem entitled "Memories." Lillie Mahone followed next, and explained how in their music class, they had written the words and music for their class song. The song was then sung for the visitors. Steve Ciszser, Steve Saros and Thelma Wallace, on behalf of the class, presented a book to Miss Perry, to be added to the school library. It is the custom for each graduating class to leave a book as a memorial. Helen Fomka called upon Henry Bartkowski to deliver the class prophecy. He foretold some illustrious careers for his classmates.

The class play was in six scenes, and depicted the various types of American music. As the curtain rose on scene 1, the setting was an Indian village. Seated near the top was Sophie Tkachuk, who portrayed an Indian maiden. Louis Wrona, as an Indian brave, then sang "The Waters of Minnetonka." His true soprano voice thrilled the audience. The chorus then sang other songs of Indian life.

Scene 2 portrayed Colonial music. Several children in costumes of that period danced the minuet, and other dances of the time.

Scene 3, which represented negro music, four girls sang some lovely spirituals which were much appreciated by the audience.

Scene 4 was cowboy music. Boys of the class, in chaps and sombreros sang songs of the plains to the guitar accompaniment of Steve Ciszser.

Scene 5 was patriotic music, which was written about the various wars in which our country fought. First grade children formed the band that led the martial music.

Scene 6 portrayed school music. The school song was then sung. As the last feature of the program, the 6A class, then threw farewell "kisses" to the audience. These were much appreciated by the children in the audience, for they were candy kisses. As the curtains fell, the class sang "We're Off to Junior High."

The complete program follows, as it was announced by Roscoe Williams.

Music, orchestra, song, "How Do You Do Graduates" by Grade 6; flax salute; devotionals, John Dunn, prayer, Jennie Abraham; hymn, vested choir; Bible story, Billy Phillips; "The Four Worst Things," Clarence Swoboda; song, girls quintet; "Am I Educated?" Freda McClain; address to 6A class, Miss Anna R. Perry; oral composition, "A Newcomer At Terrace," Richard York; readings, "Her Favorite Card," Alice Jean Hobbs; "Our Class Motto," Edith and Ethel Hares; "Our Class Colors," Irene Damaskos; "Our Class Flower," Sophie Tkachuk; "Our Class Cheer," Louis Wrona; "Our Class Poem," Billy Phillips; "Our Class Song," Lillie Mahone; "Our Class Memorial," Steve Ciszser, Steve Saros and Thelma Wallace; "Class Prophecy," Henry Bartkowski; 6B's farewell to 6A, Catherine Thomas and Stanley Gerard; reading, "Vacation Time," Billy Richards; song, "School Days," school class play, "Our American Music," Special speaking part, throughout the play were taken by Evan Davies, Frank Boron, Robert Costi and Catherine McClain.

Klingensmith Boys Attendance Record

While check-ups are being made on "perfect attendance" records of boys and girls in the local schools, here is one that is also a family record. This story concerns the family of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Klingensmith of 707 North Mercer Street. Of their sons, Richard has completed nine years of schooling without missing a day; Jack has completed seven years and Tommy holds the record of going five years without any absence. The record each lad holds marks the number of years of their entire school days, thus far.

No sentence court was held today, the few prisoners ready for sentencing being held until some details can be attended to in their cases. There are but a very few cases ready for sentence, due to the weekly class the court has held on Saturday mornings.

Criminal court opens Monday with not a case on the docket that has any great importance. Of the 13 cases few of them should take but a few hours to try. Pleas have been received in a number of fairly important cases.

In the office of Register and Recorder Orville Potter the following will have been admitted to practice:

The will of Margaret Hice, late of New Castle, leaves some small bequests to relatives and the bulk of her estate in trust to Carrie Hainer Agnew who will administer it. The net proceeds of the estate go to a daughter, Margaret, for life.
The will of G. D. Van Home, late of Little Beaver township, leaves his estate to his widow, Harriet Van Home, as long as she remains a widow. Any remainder goes to a step-son, James Miller.
The will of Miss Jane Wilkison, late of Big Beaver township, leaves one dollar each to brothers James and David and sisters Nancy and Emma. The balance goes to three sisters, Mary Ann White, Margaret Wilkison and Susan Wilkison, to be equally divided.

The will of Mrs. Amelia McCormick, late of Ellwood City, leaves property on Schenley avenue, East Riverdale, to Russell Book upon the condition that he pay $200 to a brother, Lewis of Long Beach, Cal. $200 to his daughter, Blanche, to a nephew, Edw. Miller $150, and $100 each to the following brothers and sisters: Samuel and Chester A. Book, Hazel Copper and Stella Hoffman.

Divorces were handed down Friday by Judge Thomas W. Dickey. Gladys McKay from Archie G. McKay, Ruth I. Cross from Walter J. Cross, Hilbert Wayne Pitzer from Betty Jean Pitzer, Alda M. Stafford from Vernon W. Stafford, Mary A. Kimpel from John W. Kimpel, Elizabeth Nolte Haines from William J. Haines, Hansford C. Nelson from Ina May Nelson, Charlotte Guncy from Steve Guncy, Leah Mullin from Michael Mullin.

In a decision handed down Friday, Judge W. Walter Braham finally disposes of the parking meter case, insofar as Lawrence county is concerned. The opinion answers 46 exceptions taken by the complainant, Harry J. Clark, who asked for an injunction restraining the city of New Castle from installing meters in front of his south side store.

The court dismissed the complaint and over ruled all the exceptions.

The main exception seemed to be that in which Clark contended he should be permitted to park in front of his own store free. The court answered this by saying the city had a right to pass ordinances which regulated traffic and that parking meters were a traffic regulation. Again the court said it was not passing upon the wisdom of the ordinance but merely upon the right of city council to pass it.

An order quashing an indictment against Audley W. McKee was handed down Friday by the court. The case was one in which McKee was charged with harboring an undisciplined dog. He waived a hearing in the office of Squire Charles G. Tanner of Neshannock township. Counsel for McKee contended that the squirrel could not waive a hearing as the offense calls for summary conviction which can only be before the court by a special allocator.

A Reid English, treasurer of the Pinchot forces in the spring primary, has filed the expense account of the Lawrence county committee with the secretary of the commonwealth. The Pinchot forces received $512.35 from all sources for use in this county and spent $504.89, leaving a balance of $7.46.

Register and Recorder Orville Potter is poring over time tables and route maps these days. In about a week he leaves for San Francisco to attend the convention of the Kiwanis club. Kind friends have suggested a dozen different ways of going, including a trip through the Panama canal.

Scout Jamboree Is Held Despite Rainy Weather

Scout Patrols Make Overnight Camp At Ellwood City's Camp Thompson

NEARLY HUNDRED SCOUTS IN CAMP

ELLWOOD CITY, June 11.—Close to 100 Boy Scouts representing 12 patrol from the troops in Lawrence county pitched a tent city along the banks of Rush creek at Camp Thompson near Ellwood on Friday afternoon.

Despite the rain which prevailed Friday evening the annual Camporee program was carried out by the boys. Each patrol group had a fire and shortly after the rain ceased Friday evening everything was dry.

Each patrol vied in competition with the other patrols and the eight boys in each patrol erected their tents in small "patrol sites." Everything worked out systematically, the tents went into place, equipment was sorted and placed, the evening meal was prepared and then the tenting place for the night was prepared.

As morning dawned today the boys rolled out of their blankets, washed in a nearby spring, prepared breakfast, and made the camp quite tidy. For all of their tasks each patrol was judged and given points.

Camp life for these boys is not as rough as one might expect. For example one of the patrol's menus for the Friday evening meal was as follows: Hamburg steak, potatoes, corn, green vegetable and fruit salad. All of the meals were cooked by the boys over an open camp fire.

Scout troops which entered patrols in the competition included: Troops 8 and 3 of Ellwood, Troops 35, 5, 37, 18, 3, 2 and 12 from New Castle, troops 1-A and 1-B of New Wilmington and Prisco troop 2.

Judges for the contest were Howard Gill, director of Camp Thompson and head judge, Ray N. Zetzer, the Charles Wilfred Paul, New Castle, and James McCoslin, Ellwood City.

The Camporee program ended at 10 o'clock this morning and most of the boys broke camp and returned to their homes. A number of the scouts from New Castle remained in camp and will return home Sunday afternoon.

Picard Or Metz May Win Title

Only One Stroke Difference As Golfers Start Final Day Of Open

DENVER COURSE IS VERY TOUGH

By JAMES L. KILGALLAN

DENVER, June 11.—Now that America's golfers know that Cherry Hills is a "tough" course, a big and dramatic finale is anticipated when the national open championship is decided late today. Anything can happen on this strange and hazardous course—one golfer in championship play actually took a 19 on a single hole, something the rankiest duffer could hardly take to admit to his closest friend.

Everybody from the clubhouse caddy to the dyed-in-the-wool expert was predicting that when the "heat" is on the competitors in the cool of the evening the galleries will witness a wild and woolly finish that may hinge on the sinking of the final putt.

Picard Leads

Henry Picard, the cool, deliberate and lanky Hershey, Pa., pro, was leading the pack with a gorgeous 140 as the field, narrowed to the surviving sixty players, swung into the final and crucial 36-hole test.

Clattering at Picard's heels with a 141, only a single stroke behind, was Dick Metz, the dandy-handsome, water-haired, 29-year-old Chicago professional.

Two strokes behind Metz came Harold Guss, McSpadden of Winchester, Mass., and Emory Zimmerman of Portland, Ore., who had 143.

The defending champion, strapping Ralph Guldahl of Madison, N. J., was right behind with a 144 and in a good position to "repeal" as a title winner.

Jimmy Hines of Great Neck, N. Y., Harry Cooper of Chicago, Mass., Olin Dutra of Los Angeles and Willie Hunter of Pacific Palisades, Cal., were a stroke back to Guldahl with 145.

Black-haired Johnny Rowley of Evanston, Ill., with a 146, was stalling in the running. This stout-hearted lad is wearing a leather glove on his infected right hand as he battles for the coveted silver cup and $1,000 check.

Rambling Around World Of Sports

Sports Resume . . . that 18th homer Jimmy Fox blasted against the Indians, Thursday, put him three games ahead of Babe Ruth's mark in 1927 when the Bambino propelled 61 four players . . . if Gehrig would forget that endurance record of his and go fishing for a while, we believe he would regain that hitting form . . . the coast scribbles blossom forth with another prediction . . . this time they say Chapman, with the Athletics, will be a better back player than Joe M. Maggno . . . Lou Chiozza, second knacker for the Giants, was unable to play Saturday because he puked up a bottle of oil of winter-green instead of an eye-wash fluid to doctor his ribs before the contest . . . the injury was not serious . . . Chiozza was unable to play . . . we still firmly believe that the Yankees will add another pitcher to their staff before the deadline . . . and how they need another chucker . . . Ray Hayworth, Detroit catcher, is regarded as the ace of rifle shots in the major leagues . . . Bud Boy Poffenberger skipped once more and went on a bender . . . Cochran kept up the pace for the whole season . . . Scantling would hit about 100 four players and drive in something like 350 runs . . . he started out as a catcher but shifted to the outer garden . . .

Presenting Jimmy Fox's rival, there's a ball player who is setting a more torrid pace than Jimmy Fox . . . the lad is outfielder Ray Scantling of the Red Sox . . . N. C. club of the B. Softball circuit . . . in the first 27 innings, Scantling blasted 17 homers and drove in 57 tallies . . . should be kept up the pace for the whole season . . . Three men on base and two men out and three and two on the batter, all runners are off on the pitch which is called ball four and the batter goes to first; the man on third takes his time and the man who was on second over runs third and the catcher throws to third and he is tagged before the man ahead of him has crossed home. Does the runner think I am of the opinion that it does. The ball would be out of play until the runner reached first and the umpire called "Play."

Medwick Wins From Joe Biro

Frankie Moran, Billy Reale And Frankie Moran Win Decisions

Eight fans who journeyed to the Elks last night witnessed four amateur fights, every one a slamfest and all the fans enjoyed the fist-cuffs. There were no knockouts but there was plenty of action.

The best fight was the three-rounder between Joe Biro, Youngstown, and Mickey Medwick of New Castle. They are heavyweights. Medwick was floored in the first but got up without a count and came back to win the decision.

Billy Reale and Curley Allen, both welterweights of New Castle, slugged for three rounds with Reale taking the decision. The judges and also the referee awarded him the palm.

In the second hour Frankie Moran of New Castle and Earl Donaldson of Youngstown, featherweights, fought a good fight. Moran shook up Donaldson in the second with rights to the jaw. He got the decision.

Chuck Arkett of West Pittsburg, and Harold Blank of Youngstown, welterweights, fought a hard, quiet bout with Blank getting the decision. It was a fight in which the boys left everything so that they pleased.

NEW YORK, June 11.—A steady tone ruled in the stock market today following the previous session's moderate reaction. Price changes were negligible, however, and volume was extremely light.

Business news was mixed. On the bright side was the F. W. Dodge report, showing May construction awards in 37 eastern states of $293,156,000. This was the highest dollar total since July, 1937, and was 28 per cent above April and 16 per cent ahead of a year ago. Steel operations for next week, though, were expected to show sharp declines except in the Pittsburgh area.

Speculative sentiment was aided by strength in major commodity markets. Wheat, on reduced government estimates for the domestic crop, and reports of restricted wheat crops abroad, particularly in France and Italy.

Cotton futures climbed 50 cents a bale before meeting light profit-taking.

The dollar weakened against principal foreign currencies, the Dutch guilder registering a sharp gain.

The market was mixed and quiet at the start, but gradually developed a firmer tone as the session progressed.

Steels, motors, coppers and chemicals did about as well as the general market, which at best was only fractionally improved on the day. Several representative issues finished unchanged from previous closing levels.

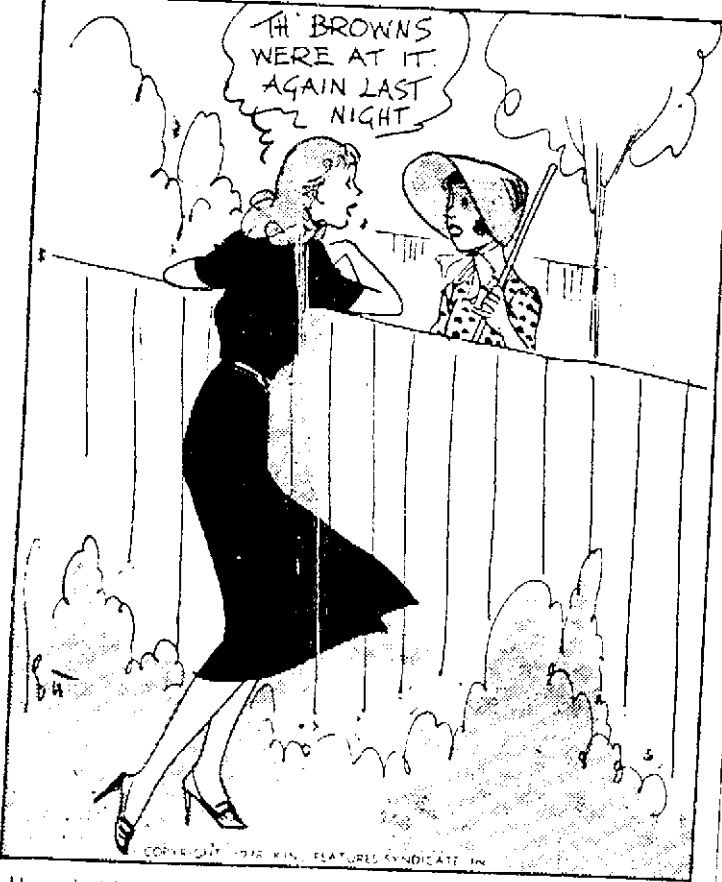

Slight improvement was shown by Chrysler, U. S. Steel, American Smelting, DuPont, Westinghouse Electric and American Can. But movements here, as in most sections of the list, were meaningless.

The hostesses of the evening were Mrs. Paul J. O'Neil, Mrs. Lily Spensler and Miss Jane Gilmore. Mrs. Throp who has been our faithful patroness for the entire time was present. There were 26 in attendance and we gathered around the tables laid in the large dining room, each table centered with a rose bud and set for the entire group, where after the blessing by the patroness, were enjoyed a delicious turkey dinner. The devotionals were in charge of Mrs. Gwin and consisted of hymns, prayer reading, talk by the first president, solo, The Little Tin Soldier, history and talk by Mrs. Throp. There were four of the former members in attendance. The business meeting was very short and as enough money for the quarterly apportionment was raised, the picnic which comes on July 14th will be held at Icora Park Youngstown and Mrs. Mark Hedegore, Mrs. John Hayes and Miss Hilda Lago will act as the eats committee. The social committee had charge of a few games before we departed for our respective homes.

Lads Depart On 1,000
Mile Canoe Voyage To
New Orleans, Louisiana

Slipping into the Shenango river, just below the East Cherry street bridge this morning at 9:15 o'clock, Joseph Hunter, 16, of Moody avenue and Edward Hutchinson, 17, of North Liberty street, began the first leg of a planned 1,000 mile voyage to New Orleans, La., by canoe.

Farewell and good luck messages were given the two boys by members of their families who had gathered to see them off.

For the voyage the canoe was heavily loaded with enough supplies to last for two weeks. According to Hutchinson the youths expect to reach Beaver Falls by nightfall. If this town is reached they will camp on the river bank.

For security the boys are carrying letters of introduction from the Mayor Charles E. McGrath, Frank L. Orth, principal of the high school, and from Sid Lockley, city controller.

In order that everything would be planned perfectly and no details overlooked, the boys have been planning this voyage for the past six months. They constructed their own canoe, which was made of a wooden frame covered with canvas.

Included in the equipment carried by the boys was a good amount of patching to be used in making repairs to the canoe when needed.

The entire summer will be required by the two youths in their vacation jaunt down the river. Upon reaching their objective they plan to hitch-hike their way back to this town to add to the attractiveness of the adventure.

Due to the fact that the first leg of their journey is quite hazardous and a portion of the trip will necessarily have to be made overland, the adventurers may not reach their destination of Beaver Falls by tonight. However they will camp wherever they happen to be when night is approaching.

Helpful Lectures Friday Afternoon

Sabbath School Convention
Delegates Hear Prominent Speakers

DR. R. H. MARTIN
IS INTRODUCED

Dr. R. H. Martin of Pittsburgh, president of the National Reform association, delivered the first of the Friday afternoon addresses to Lawrence County Sabbath School association delegates in Highland L. P. church, having for his subject "Our Present Day Liquor Problems".

Dr. Martin talked just briefly, explaining that he would go into more detail at the closing session of the convention in the evening. Seeing in the audience his friend, State Grange Master J. Audley Boak, he invited him to make some remarks. This Mr. Boak did. He spoke of the liquor situation, saying that it is much worse than it was before prohibition, and declared that repeal had been achieved, not by those who wanted liquor back, but by those who were "indifferent".

Mrs. H. F. Magill introduced a young woman, Mrs. R. A. Wilson, a former teacher in the public schools who is today a missionary in western India, under the Presbyterian board. Mrs. Wilson gave an account of the work being done on the field.

Walter E. Myers, H. L. Marvin, energetic president of the New Castle district, who shared the duties of presiding officer with Robert N. Strickler, Jr., throughout the two-day convention, again presented Walter E. Myers of Philadelphia, general secretary of the Pennsylvania State Sabbath School association, who delivered his fourth and final lecture to the delegates. He had for his subject, "Better as Well as Figger," and told the assemblage how they might better their Sunday school curriculum.

"I don't mean your course of study only," he said. "I mean every part of your Sunday school exercises. I mean your worship service. I mean your leadership, your teaching and executive abilities, your program and administration. All these things can be improved. The Sunday school isn't perfect and it never has been."

John Owens led the congregation in the singing of the convention song, "It Is Morning in My Heart".

Rev. A. E. Driggers, pastor of the Rochester Presbyterian church, delivered the closing address of the afternoon, giving many helpful suggestions to the host of Sunday school workers. The rest of the afternoon was passed by the delegates in conference and instruction periods. Daily Vacation Bible school, missions, administrative, young people's and children's work were discussed. Rev. R. E. Douglass, Mrs. A. C. Gardner, Miss Anna Perry, Miss Marjorie Streeter and Mrs. A. B. Street presided. The leaders and speakers were Mrs. E. E. Douglass, Mrs. H. F. Magill, Walter E. Myers, Mrs. D. C. McClelland and Miss Pearl Hockenberry.

Nacmi Circle served a banquet at 5 o'clock; special music during the banquet hour was provided by young people of the Ellwood district.

AROUND CITY HALL

Considerable annoyance to businessmen, shoppers, pedestrians and residents was caused during the past week by the blaring horns on a sound wagon which exploded a carnival outside the city limits. The operators of the sound wagon paid five dollars a day for the privilege of operating the sound wagon. When the ordinance governing such affairs was adopted the intent was to eliminate them. However, due to the low cost of operating such vehicles the ordinance's intent has been voided.

All day yesterday city electricians worked on the traffic light at the corner of East Washington and Mercer streets. After it had been removed it was replaced by the progressive system then replaced. It is not known exactly when the new system will be placed in effect.

Not more than one half dozen persons appeared in traffic court yesterday and requested exemption from the payment for violation of parking meters. Mayor Charles E. McGrath has excused those who he felt did not intentionally violate the law.

The Human Side Of The News

(By EDWIN C. HILL)
Copyright 1935 King Features Syndicate, Inc.

This department has an idea that the proposal to drive a tunnel under the British channel, now being revived, isn't so foolish or improbable as it might seem. It has been the dream of dictators, promoters and politicians for more than a century and a half, but it has also been the endeavor of conservative engineers and financiers, with the Rothschilds behind it.

The fact is that France and England driving each from its own shore, started the tunnel 56 years ago and bored nearly three miles. They found a chalk bed extending under the entire channel, constituting absolutely ideal conditions for channel-building. They drove ahead at the rate of 16 feet an hour, newly devised disk knives cutting through the chalk formation like cheese. There was left a clean-cut tunnel bore, which needed little or no shooting or trimming, and which is still dry after more than half a century. British insularity, and nothing else, suddenly ended the work.

Archibald Black, in his recently published book, "The Story of Tunnels" gives an excellent account of the channel project, from the day when Mathieu, a French engineer, first interested Napoleon, in 1833, when alarmed Englishmen summarily ended the digging. There was an all but universal popular fear that the tunnel would be an access for enemies.

The engineers tried desperately to make the public understand that flood gates would let in the sea and drown invaders in the bat of an eye. Gladstone urged its building and some of the greatest financiers in England joined the Rothschilds in offers to finance it. But the public fear would not be allayed. A joint commission of the Lords and Commons killed it; once again the burghers slept soundly in their beds.

In July, 1916, the project was revived, this time with both countries keenly alive to its wartime effectiveness, but England was just then seeking a "better deal," as Captain Bruce Bairnsfather put it. In 1922 Marshal Foch urged that the tunnel be built, insisting that it might have prevented the war and certainly would have brought it to a much quicker end, if it had been built in the pre-war years.

In 1930, a government tunnel committee found that the first preliminary bore of the tunnel could be driven the entire 27 miles for $27,160,000, and that the completed tunnel and terminals would cost $154,000,000. That is only 50 per cent of the cost of the Pennsylvania railroad's New York tunnels and terminals, and one-third the cost of the Panama Canal.

In his book, Mr. Black said quite positively that the channel tunnel was by no means a dead issue, and predicted that it soon would be on the boards again. And so it is, with no more privacy for Englishmen behind their Hawthorne hedges and a new urgency for an underground link with friendly foreigners.

The whole idea is extremely distasteful to the Mr. Britlings who are still "seeing it through" but it looks as if they might come to it yet. One thing is quite certain. As an engineering exploit it is quite feasible. There is no dispute about that.

Social security for mules is undoubtedly a worthy and commendable endeavor and should appeal to our most generous instincts. Congress put through a mule old-age pension bill, specifying green pastures, plenty of oats, etc., but why this "round about way to get at it?" As the bill goes through, the Secretary of War lets it be known that all this was being provided or by a simple change in army rules.

One wonders whether statesmen, bitten by the law-itch, ever takes a look at existing agencies, to see if their purpose might be achieved without adding to this vast clutter of laws with which the country is being swamped.

As to the army mule, he's a tough, old-time individual, who has managed to survive mainly on his own account and without pampering. His tribe has been increasing, as he proves himself effective in certain situations where mechanized equipment fails. That's why he finds the army ready to take care of him, without any special laws.

The Navy blimp J-4 at Lakehurst, N. J., is being painted robin's egg blue. The shine is taken off its nose by a coat of especially flat paint. When in the air, we do as the birds do—take to protective coloring. High flying birds, living mostly in the open, are apt to be blue from below and earth-brown from above, in the interest of low visibility. Parrots in the dark green jungles are green.

But shouldn't the blimp, blue on its underside, be brown or green on its top side? What about the view from an aeroplane about it? The shining aluminum paint of the blimp, flashing in the sun, makes them a glorious and triumphant spectacle. But they can't afford to be conspicuous at a time of war or rumors of war. They take on camouflage, like the birds and beasts.

War revives jungle tricks. High-flying financiers, too are no longer conspicuous if they can help it. If things go on the way they are, the stores will be advertising camouflaged suits, so we can dodge creditors and process servers.

Model Aeroplane On Long Flight

Ship Of Don Kemp Launched
At Airport Is Found On Fairmont Avenue

Many North Hill residents heard the purring sound of a motor overhead Thursday afternoon, but they were unable to find the source of the noise. The noise, it was found later, came from the model aeroplane of Don Kemp.

Kemp launched his plane at the New Castle airport with a half tank of gasoline mixture. The ship flew about eight minutes and then disappeared.

The last sight of it that was seen from the airport, the plane was headed towards New Castle. Owner Kemp feared that he had seen the last of his ship, as it is almost impossible to follow a model ship once it gets away.

Later in the day as Roger Hawk was walking along Fairmont, the ship came down for a perfect landing in the street a short distance from Hawk. Roger is also interested in model aeroplanes and he immediately recognized the ship as the property of Don Kemp and returned it to its owner.
